HARTFORD, CT—YWCA Hartford Region and Honorary Chair Denise L. Nappier, Connecticut State Treasurer, will host the 13th Annual Money Conference for Women, a FREE conference to help women take charge of their financial futures. Registration is now open for the FREE Money Conference for Women. Register at www.ctmoneyconferenceforwomen.com.

The event will take place on Saturday, October 25, 2014 from 7:30 AM – 2:00 PM at the Connecticut Convention Center in Hartford, Connecticut. The Money Conference for Women is excited to welcome new keynote speaker, Valerie Coleman Morris, business journalist and author.

Participants will hear Valerie Coleman Morris's message "Unlimited by Design: It's Your Money So Take It Personally." When it comes to money, women need to be far sighted, start saving early and stick to their money plan.

The Money Conference for Women is designed to address the unique financial challenges women of all ages face in their work and personal lives. In Connecticut, female workers are still paid on average only 74 cents for each dollar made by men for the same job. The wage gap amounts to $443,360 of lost wages over a 40-year period of full-time work. A woman would have to work almost 12 additional years to make up this gap.

The conference features workshops led by financial experts on topics such as budgeting, investing, retirement planning, home ownership and featuring a new workshop for women who are considering opening a small business. Conference attendees can also visit the Financial Expo to learn more from a variety of financial service providers. Free online registration is available at www.ctmoneyconferenceforwomen.com. To request a registration form, or to get more information about the event, call (860) 525-1163, ext. 450.

The Money Conference for Women is sponsored in part by Prudential Retirement.
